PROJECTS

Shopping Application using Angular: Application consists of different categories of products to shop. User can choose any category and from the list of products they can add or remove from the cart. User can go back and forth in categories and select different products. They can visit cart page and buy the products or remove from it.

LinkedIn Project using React, Nodejs, MongoDB: My contribution in this project to design Signup and Login page. In signup page there are validations like unique user name and email account check from the database and Hashing of passwords. In login page credentials are verified with the database and created an option for resetting password. NodeJS is used as middleware
